PRICE, FIVE CENTS

OMAHA'S TROUBLES.

Plot Discovered to Arrest Certain City Officials.

THE MAYOR ONE OF THEM.

The Municipal Reformers and the A. P. A. Lock Horns and Trouble is Expected to Follow.

OMAHA, Neb., July 3.—The difficulty between the A. P. A.s and the municipal reform element reached sensational proportions yesterday when the details of a plot was made public by which Martin J. White, the new chief of police, who was employed in Chicago last week to reorganize Omaha's police force, was to be arrested for impersonating an officer, and Mayor Bemis and Police Commissioners Brown and Deaver for violating the anti-Pinkerton ordinance in employing White.

The developments have created quite a political sensation in the city, and intensified the feeling between the A. P. A. faction and the municipal reform element, the latter representing the business class of Omaha. The first intimation that an attempt was to be made to prevent White from acting as chief was in the shape of a rumor that the plotters had arranged with District Judge Scott, who is reputed to be one of the leading spirits of the A. P. A., to release the first person arrested under order of White on a writ of habeas corpus on the alleged ground that he had no authority to make arrests.

It was discovered that the plan would be ineffective. Even if Judge Scott should grant the writs, the chief would still file complaints, as this was the privilege of every citizen. The A. P. A. leaders finally conceived the idea of issuing a warrant for the arrest of the chief of police for impersonating an officer.

If the chief could be disposed of thus for thirty days they expected that through the operation of the new law, which on August 1 reorganizes the board of fire and police commissioners in favor of the A. P. A., they would be able to get a chief of police in sympathy with their purposes, who would assist in making the police department a sectarian organization in which the A. P. A. would swing on the inner circle. The plot included the proposed arrest of Mayor Bemis and Police Commissioners Brown and Deaver on the charge of violating the anti-Pinkerton law. The papers for the proposed fight, it is understood, are ready and liable to be filed at any moment.

An immense meeting of all citizens in favor of municipal reform was held at the chamber of commerce last night. They are confident the new scheme of the radical A. P. A. can only result in the further defeat of the element who depend for political success on sectarian agitation. The Municipal league ridicules the idea that the anti-Pinkerton law has been violated in the employment of Mr. White. White is an old Chicago police officer and was the chief detective of the entire Milwaukee system when employed.

THE OTHER SIDE.

W. L. Morgan Explains Regarding the Simpson Property.

Editor Sedalia Democrat:

LINCOLN, Mo., July 2.—DEAR SIR: I received today a copy of your paper from a friend, in which you published an interview from a Mr. Simpson, claiming that I swindled him out of a house and lot in Sedalia. Now, the facts are these:

Mr. Simpson came to me to see some land I had and I showed it to him and we could not trade.

A month later I met Mr. Dillon at Siche's hotel at Sedalia, and he said he had the Simpson property for trade and asked me if I did not have some cheaper land to trade; that Mr. Simpson must have some money to buy wood for his wood-yard, and wanted to trade for land that was not worth as much as his property and get the difference. Mr. Dillon then went and saw Mr. Simpson and came back and we traded. I gave him the eighty acres of land and sixty-five cords of wood for his house and lot, subject to a deed of trust of $40.

I saw Thomas May, who owns property joining the Simpson property, and he said $250 was a big price for the Simpson property.

I traded the Simpson property to P. Minter for five head of horses, which I took at $50 per head, and sold them a few months later for $35 a head.

Now, the wood I shipped Mr. Simpson was worth $2 per cord, or $130; the deed of trust, $40, makes $170, and the eighty acres of land. That is how Mr. Simpson was swindled.

Now, as to the charges that Mr. Simpson publishes in your paper of last Tuesday, I simply wish to say that when he says that I misrepresented any land to him he says what is not true; and when he says that I decided, or caused to be decided, to him any land that I did not have a good title to, he tells a falsehood; and when he says that I swindled him or helped to do so in any way, he tells a lie.

This transaction took place in 1893, and I have met Mr. Simpson several times at our store, and also in Sedalia, and the first time I heard that he was dissatisfied with his trade was when I read the article in your paper.

I suppose Mr. Simpson would still be satisfied with his trade if it was not a positive fact that Sedalia is going to get the capital in 1896.

PEHL'S LICENSE.

The County Court Granted It At This Afternoon's Session.

The fight of the Civic federation against the granting of a dramshop license to Peter Pehl was decided at 2:30 this afternoon, when Judge Connor, presiding judge of the county court, announced that the court had determined to grant the license.

The Civic federation sought to prevent the license on the ground that Mr. Pehl had kept open house on the occasion of the St. Louis-Kansas City excursions to Sedalia a few Sundays ago, but Lawyer H. T. Williams was unable to prove a single specific charge of a violation of the Sunday law.

It is now given out that the Sunday excursion matter will not be used against any of the other applicants for dramshop license, as it is supposed the strongest evidence possessed by the opponents was in the Pehl case. W. D. Steele appeared for Mr. Pehl.

The pay roll for the various county officers for the quarter ended June 29 was approved and warrants ordered.

ALBERS ARRESTED.

Two Charges Lodged Against Him—Gives Bond to Appear.

Chas. Albers, whose gambling rooms in the second story of the building at 206 Ohio street were wrecked by Bart Jackson early yesterday morning, as told in the DEMOCRAT, was arrested at 11 o'clock last night by Constable James Gossage, on warrants charging him with setting up a common gambling house and with gambling, and he gave bond for his appearance before Justice Fisher on the 9th.

The arrest grew out of the fight young Jackson made upon the keeper, the inmates and the furniture of the room. The officers have subpoenas for quite a number of witnesses, including those present when Jackson made his raid.

THE DEMOCRAT, SEDALIA, MO.

OFFICE, 307 Ohio Street. Telephone 222.

MAKE your arrangements to have a good time tomorrow. Every citizen should celebrate Independence day.

WATCH the little boys tomorrow! Let them have a good time. Let them celebrate to their hearts' content, but remember there is danger in the toy cannon and death in fireworks carelessly handled. Let the day's record be written without having to tell of any little innocent mangled.

THE Capital serves notice on those who have criticised it for publishing saloon advertisements and denounced it as being the tool of the liquor influence, that it has some records on hand that will not look well in print, and that it will use them if necessary, no matter who is hurt. Gentlemen, gentlemen, let us have peace!

THE Globe-Democrat proudly proclaims that "all over the world there is a plethora of cash." The same journal must admit that everywhere there is also a plethora of idle labor. Now why does this state of affairs exist, unless it be that the constant downward tendency of prices, consequent upon a constantly appreciating money standard, has made capitalists afraid to invest.

THE DEMOCRAT regrets to chronicle the death of Mrs. Sue J. Rittenhouse, the founder and editor of the Jonesburg Journal, and late editor of the Washington Journal, which occurred at Washington, Mo., June 28th. Mrs. Rittenhouse was a most estimable lady, and as a writer and a journalist had few equals in Missouri. The DEMOCRAT tenders sincere sympathy to the bereaved son, Mr. Harry Rittenhouse, who has lost his best friend on earth.

THE Gazette, in an ironical way, calls for a public meeting to protest against the DEMOCRAT's publication of the story of the disturbance and the arrest which followed yesterday morning. Very well. When the DEMOCRAT is guilty of perpetrating a publication which calls for rebuke from such an audience as that which assembled at the court house on a recent occasion, then this paper will publish the resolutions and an abject apology.

THE most welcome news the American working men receive these days are the frequent announcements of increase in wages in the manufacturing center. Each day it becomes more probable that the congress that was elected last fall will not dare carry out the promise to repeal the new tariff law, and by next year the threat to reenact the McKinley monstrosity would almost create a riot in any intelligent community. The "statesmen" who predicted ruin as a result of the tax reduction made by the last congress will have a hard time explaining the situation when they meet the people next fall.

Now that it has been discovered that there really was one solitary gambling house in Sedalia, and that has been effectually demolished, the DEMOCRAT and Capital can resume their vigorous protestation that Sedalia is a nice, moral town.—Gazette.

Certainly the DEMOCRAT maintains that Sedalia is a moral town! Does the Gazette maintain anything else? Isn't Sedalia a moral town in spite of the existence of a gambling house, or two gambling houses for that matter? Are not crimes committed in all communities? Shall a whole town be condemned because there are a few men who gamble or violate other laws? Really the Gazette seems to have run mad and lost all the rea-oning powers it ever possessed. Was not the man who created the disturbance and the man who kept the gambling house both arrested by the ordinary processes of the law, and are not both under bond to appear for trial? Is not this the process usually adopted in such cases in other moral communities? Yes; Sedalia is a moral town; and, like other well regulated communities, is becoming more moral as the years roll by. The DEMOCRAT has no hesitancy in advising moral people to come and locate in Sedalia and feels warranted in promising them that they will find the average of citizenship as high as anywhere else.

THE PARTY'S STRENGTH.

THE DEMOCRAT sincerely desires to see the democratic party regain its old-time majority in this state, but does not believe that this either should or could be done by a surrender of any single article of democratic faith.

A few years ago not a democrat could be found in the state to question the wisdom or justice of legislation to return to the bimetallic monetary system under which the United States prospered for eighty years.

We were told that the financial reform so much desired only waited upon the correction of a more acute and pressing evil—the high protective tariff iniquity—and that as soon as that reform was accomplished the guns would be trained upon the gold standard and the people would be relieved from its burdens.

The tariff question has been substantially settled, for a decade, at least, and the honest, sincere masses of the party expect to be led against the other evil.

A few of the would-be party leaders seem to have seen a great light in the financial horizon and to have become converted to the doctrine of gold monometallism.

They, with all the zeal which usually characterizes new converts, assail the men with whom they have associated for years as being the apostles of some new and strange doctrine, just as though free coinage of silver has not been an article of democratic faith all along, especially in Missouri.

These gentlemen seem to forget that the real strength of the democratic party is in staying close to the people, and that if the party wins a victory it must be now, as in the days of Jefferson and Jackson, as the champion of the rights and the interests of the masses.

As the party of the plain, common people the democracy is a giant; but as an advocate of the financial system suitable to an empire that is governed by a privileged class with fixed and entailed incomes, it is a Sampson shorn of its strength.

New Railroad for Carthage.

A new railroad to Carthage is being prospected, to run up Spring River Valley from the Stotts City mines, twenty-two miles east of that city. The mines are operated by capitalists who own large tracts of rich land in Jasper and adjoining counties, and to make it fully remunerative easy access to transportation facilities must be had. This road will be also of great interest to merchants of St. Louis.

"MISSOURI ON WHEELS"

Secretary W. M. Simms Will Begin Loading at Sedalia July 15.

J. H. Logan is in receipt of a letter from W. M. Simms, secretary of the "Missouri on Wheels" project, says yesterday's Nevada Mail. Mr. Simms says: "We are informed that you have one of the finest fruit farms in the state and we would be pleased if you would furnish samples of your different kinds of fruit, put up in glass jars, for exhibition on the advertising train. We will begin loading July 15 at Sedalia." Mr. Simms also asks for advertising matter descriptive of the Logan farm.

Mr. Simms' information is quite right in regard to "one of the finest fruit farms in the state." It is, doubtless, the finest fruit farm in Missouri, or any adjoining state.

Mr. Logan has ninety-six acres, all in fruit, and in the finest possible condition. On this place there are about 4,000 apple trees—2,000 in bearing. Mr. Logan estimates his apple crop for this season at about 3,000 bushels. There are also about 200 peach trees, 1,500 plum trees, of which 800 are in bearing, and 150 cherry trees.

There are about sixty acres in small fruits—strawberries, raspberries and blackberries. This year he will market about 3,000 crates of berries.

Mr. Logan is one of the very best fruit men in Missouri, as the results of his labor and tact clearly prove. Within the few years he has been here he has converted a forest into a magnificent fruit farm, which any country could well afford to feel proud of. Besides this, by his careful work as a pioneer, he attracted careful gardeners and fruit raisers about him, converting that magnificent fruit section from wooded ridges to highly cultivated and paying small farms.

Mr. Logan has a beautiful home, a magnificent fruit farm, and he deserves it all. He and his industrious family have earned it, and they merit the richest success.

Something New For Sedalia.

Why do you buy the old hard tough meat and send it home for your wife to cook and then complain with her because she has not made it tender, when you can buy meat that is already tender, made so by the cold storage process? We hold all our meat in cold storage until they become tender and juicy before we send it out. There is no use of any one in Sedalia having any difficulty with tough meat, for we can furnish you with something you will appreciate and you will have a meal you will enjoy. All we ask of you is to give us a trial, and you will fall right in line with the balance and buy your meat where you can get something fit to eat. We make a specialty of prime roast beef, and we guarantee every one of our roasts to be tender and juicy.

The reason our meats are so much better than you get elsewhere is because we have the largest cold storage, by half, than any two other markets in the city, and we can hold our meats long enough so they become tender. Any one who knows anything about meats knows what cold storage will do for it. It takes all the old hard tough substance from it and gives it a nice tender and juicy flavor. The old foggy way of butchering a beef to-night and selling it out tomorrow, like it is being done by others, is why your meat is tough.

Leave word at our market and we will call at your house daily and get your orders, or telephone 120. NEWTON MEAT CO.

LAWYERS DEBARRED

Supreme Court Decision Disgraces Them.

MUTILATED THE RECORDS.

Were Attorneys for the Defense in a Noted Murder Case—Judge Sherwood's Opinion.

Judge Sherwood filed an opinion in the supreme court in banc yesterday in the proceedings instituted by Attorney General Walker disbaring Colonel Ed M. Harber and A. G. Knight, of Trenton, forever from practicing before the supreme court.

The action was the result of the murder trial of Joseph A. Howell, who was indicted for murdering Mrs. Nettie Hall, a Linn county widow, and her four little children. The case was tried in Grundy county and Howell convicted of murder in the first degree. An appeal was taken to the supreme court, and when the case was called up for argument the attorney general found that the transcript of testimony had been mutilated and forged so as to destroy all identity of the murdered person. In brief, the records had been so doctored as to leave the state without any case. This matter, being brought to the attention of the court, measures were adopted to have the records corrected and Howell was subsequently hanged.

The attorney general then brought action to disbar the attorneys for the defense. Major A. W. Mullins, one of the attorneys, barely escaped by a divided court, on the theory that he did not know the records had been falsified.

This is the first disbarment proceedings ever instituted in the state supreme court.

Judge Burgess did not sit in the case against Harber and Knight, but all the other judges concurred in the opinion of Judge Sherwood.

Harber has been a leading man in Missouri for the last fifteen years. He is quite an orator and politician and has been a presidential elector, and was regarded for some time as an available candidate for congress. Knight, his partner, is not so widely known, but he is a promising young lawyer.

In his opinion Judge Sherwood scored them severely for forging the records and manufacturing testimony.

"We had an epidemic of dysentery in this vicinity last summer," says Samuel S. Pollock, of Brice-land, Cal. "I was taken with it and suffered severely until some one called my attention to Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea remedy. I procured a bottle and felt better after the first dose. Before one-half of the bottle had been used I was well. I recommended it to my friends and their experience was the same. We all unite in saying it is the best."

MISSOURI CROPS.

The Past Week Very Favorable to Plant Growth.

The weekly weather crop bulletin reports as follows: Mean temperature about normal during the past week. The average precipitation was considerably in excess of the normal in the north, but over most of the southeast the rainfall was quite light. In several of the northern counties heavy rains occurred, doing considerable damage by washing. High winds also did much damage to corn, flax and fruit in a number of counties.

On the whole the week was quite favorable for plant growth, but in many counties the rains have seriously interfered with haying and harvest, and the ground has been too wet for cultivation.

Wheat is about all cut, except in some of the northern counties, and threshing and stacking are in progress where not too wet. Considerable damage by rain is reported in several of the central and southern counties.

Oats have continued to improve rapidly and will be much better than was expected a few weeks ago. They are ripening and harvest is in progress.

Corn has grown rapidly, is beginning to silk and tassels, and much of it has been laid by. Prospects for an excellent crop of corn were never more flattering. A large yield is expected.

Wheat has turned out in most sections better than was expected, and will probably average about two-thirds of a full crop.

RAILROAD RUMBLE.

The Katy Makes Further Reductions in Rates.

NEVADA'S RAILROAD MEN.

Items of Interest Picked Up From Various Sources for the Benefit of "Democrat" Readers.

The Missouri, Kansas and Texas railroad made slashing cuts to Missouri river points yesterday, meeting the reductions in passenger rates already made by the Santa Fe.

General Passenger Agent W. A. Crush, of the Katy in Texas, announces that they are ready to make it interesting for all rivals now that the cut has come. A passenger rate war of huge proportions is on.

The Texas and Pacific people refuse to budge from the regular tariff rates, but there is no telling what they will be called upon to do.

The Katy announces that commencing July 5, and to July 25, inclusive, they will sell tickets from Houston to St. Louis, Kansas City, Hannibal and Junction City at one-half the regular first-class rate for continuous passage.

Nevada's Railroad Men.

There are a very few citizens of Nevada who realize the importance of the local railroad men as a factor in the business of the city, says yesterday's Post.

An idea of their value to the trade of the town may be gathered from the fact a careful estimate of the annual disbursements to employees of the company at this point shows that they aggregate $133,822.

A conservative citizen who is in the employ of one of the companies has prepared the following figures in reference to the number of men engaged in the various departments who have homes in Nevada:

There are 65 brakemen, who average $50 per month.

Twelve yard men at $80.

Fifteen engineers at $85.

Twenty-five firemen at $55.

Eighteen conductors at $85.

Six dispatchers at $125.

Superintendent Keller's office, $3,600 per year.

Two operators at $75.

Roadmaster's office, $1,800 per year.

Four section gangs of five men each, $1.10 per day, aggregating $7,908 per year.

Three crossing men, $1,080 per year.

Eight hostlers and helpers, aggregating $5,000 per year.

One lineman, $900 per year.

Five car repairers, $3,000 per year.

Twenty-five extras, who receive during the year about $12,000.

The total amount in cash gives activity to all lines of trade and to the city generally a business tone which would be difficult to acquire in any other way.

Attaching Cars in Transit.

The supreme court yesterday, in affirming the decision of the lower court, has rendered an important decision to railroads. The decision in effect is that cars in transit between states can be attached.

Two years ago the Southern Grain company had a claim against Hatch & Cramm and brought suit in the circuit court and attached a car load of lard owned by Hatch & Cramm, which was made up in a freight train on the tracks of the Missouri, Kansas and Texas railway.

The railway company claimed that the car was in transit and could not be attached because a railroad was a common carrier, and that after a train was made up to set out a particular car would delay traffic and be a violation of the interstate commerce law. The lower court decided that the car might be attached and the supreme court affirmed that decision.

Judgment in a Famous Case.

In the case of Benetzeta Williams and others against the Chicago, Santa Fe and California Railway company, Referee F. L. Schofield made public his findings at Hannibal yesterday.

The suit was originally brought for $180,000 by the plaintiffs, who were contractors in the building of the road. The decision covered 54 pages of typewritten matter. The judgment is given for plaintiff for $83,505. The testimony covers 10,000 pages of legal cap paper and during the progress of the trial Referee Schofield held court several days at the City of Mexico, the first American court to sit in that country.

The hearing of the testimony consumed 76 days and the argument 17 days, Judge McKeighan of St. Louis speaking six days in presenting the plaintiff.

Conductor Hiram Lewis and family left this morning for South Dakota and other northern points, where they will spend the heated term. They will also visit the northern lakes before their return.

General Manager Doddridge, of the Missouri Pacific, who returned to St. Louis yesterday from Omaha, states that the crop prospects are splendid in every direction. The cry in the fall will be a scarcity of cars.

The wrecking train was sent out from here last evening to Matson, on the M., K. & E., where two cars and a dead engine of a westbound freight train went through a small bridge at 5.45 p. m. Nobody was injured.

For June the earnings of the Missouri Pacific were $343,000 against $318,000 for the same month last year—an increase of $25,000. The M., K. & T. earned in the same month $200,098 as against $136,954—an increase of $63,143.

Mr. R. E. Cheers has been relieved of the railroad office by a Mr. Saunders. Mr. C. goes from here to Sedalia and will take charge of another station. Just where he will go he does not know at present.—Washington, Missouri, Journal.

Among the numerous persons who have been cured of rheumatism by Chamberlain's Pain Balm, mention should be made of Mrs. Emily Thorne, of Toledo, Wash., who says: "I have never been able to procure any medicine that would relieve me of rheumatism like Chamberlain's Pain Balm. I have also used it for lame back with great success. It is the best liniment I have ever used and I take pleasure in recommending it to my friends."

THE ARC LIGHT.

Photographers Prefer It for Its Cheapness and Quality.

Rankin Kennedy, in a paper on the use of the photographic electric light, says that, although the electric light has done good service to the photographer in the past, it will have to give way to the arc light in the higher fields of artificial light photography. Artificial light varies much in quality, and the photographer seeks, above all, to secure the gratest amount of photographic light at the lowest cost and with the least labor and trouble. It is a familiar fact that all ordinary lights are made up of seven or more different colored series of rays, some being bluish, some yellowish like gas and incandescent electric light. The arc light is very rich in the blue and violet rays on which the photographer so much depends to do his best work, while it is poverty stricken in reds and yellows, which, however, do not produce any effect on the photographic plate. The incandescent light has very little of the blue and the violet rays, and, according to measurements made by Mr. Kennedy, the arc light contains thirty per cent. more photographic or actinic rays than the incandescent light of the same illuminating power. To illustrate the value of the respective lights for this purpose, Mr. Kennedy took photographs, first of an object thrown on to a screen in the focus of an ordinary hand-fed arc lamp, and then of the same object under the illumination of an incandescent lamp run up in candle power far beyond the normal standard, as used in the incandescent photo apparatus. After exactly the same exposure the plate developed from the incandescent light was very faint, whereas the print taken from the arc light was distinct, dense and decided. Mr. Kennedy compared the cost of the respective lights, putting down the incandescent at about $1.25 an hour for studio purposes and the arc at 35 cents an hour. The reason of the high cost of the incandescents is that they are necessarily heated to a high candle power, and this volatilizes the carbon, which forms a deposit on the globe and makes the light more dim every time it is turned on, so that a photographer can never count absolutely on the same light from incandescents, while from the arc the light is always uniform, and an operator can count on giving exactly the same exposure in every instance. Mr. Kennedy holds that the incandescent photo light is destined to failure, first, from a commercial point of view, owing to the enormous cost for current and renewals, and secondly, from a photographer's point of view, as when heated even to the highest candle power it does not contain the necessary photographic rays in sufficient quantity.

Lining Their Winter Duds.

Two newsboys sat on the stairs with a pile of newspapers on the steps above them. One had his coat off and both were busy lining the inside of the tattered garment with folded papers. They handled their large needles clumsily, but after a time succeeded in lining the coat. The boy who owned the coat slipped it on, and, turning up the collar, remarked: "That'll keep the wind out."

Then the other boy took off his coat and soon his summer jacket was made over into a winter reefer by lining it with newspapers.

A policeman watched the little tailors. "The kids caught the idea from the gripmen and hack drivers," he said. "You see, a newspaper ain't so warm itself, but it keeps the wind out, and the newsboys suffer a great deal from the winds which come sliding down the sides of the high office buildings. They have seen hack drivers double up paper and slip it inside of their vests, and they caught on."

Newspaper blankets covered many of the poor fellows who slept in the corridors of the city hall last winter. The unemployed wanderers picked up as many papers as they could, and with bits of string quilted the papers together. One paper quilt served as a mattress and the other as a covering.—Chicago Record.

A Motto Adapted.

"My friend," said the truly patriotic citizen, "you are becoming prominent in politics."

"Betcherlife!" replied the local leader.

"I trust you will adopt as your motto the good old phrase: 'Be sure you're right, and then go ahead.'"

"Not exactly, tho' ye're guessin' putty close. De motto of our association is: 'Be sure ye get ahead; ye kin make it right afterward.' See?"

TRIP AROUND CAPE HORN

Samples of the Weather Found in That Locality.

Seamen Tell of One of the Most Unlucky Voyages Ever Made Around This Wind Swept Point—Only Two Lives Lost.

The British ship Speke, which left Antwerp three hundred and thirty-four days ago for this port, ended her voyage yesterday, says the San Francisco Examiner, and from the reports of her crew it was one of the most unlucky voyages around Cape Horn that have been undertaken for many months. The vessel sailed on June 16, 1894, and all went well until August 22, when the vessel was almost within sight of Cape Horn. On that day a gale that had been blowing all the preceding day increased to a hurricane. Several of the lighter sails were blown to ribbons, and the first mate, J. Bruton, went aloft with the men to assist in replacing them. While he was in the fore-rigging the ship gave a lurch as a great wave broke on deck, and about the same instant a dark body was seen to fall from the yard of the foremast through the flying spray and sink into the sea. It was the first mate who went overboard and was never seen again. It was impossible to make any attempt to save the drowning man.

A seaman named Denerice was badly bruised by being knocked about the deck, and several others were laid up from bruises received the same way. The next day the gale moderated somewhat, but a heavy cross sea was running and the ship labored heavily.

The relieving tackles on the tiller were carried away, and the next wave that broke on the deck washed away the midship steering gear. Some new sails were set, but they were blown away again, and the vessel rolled and pitched at the mercy of the storm. Then came a week of moderate weather, and advantage was taken of it to make repairs.

On September 7 the vessel passed Cape Horn, and five days later, after weathering a succession of gales, another hurricane was encountered. The first blast of the storm threw the ship on her beam ends, and the sea made a complete breach over the hull, washing the deck clear. The rush of the tremendous body of water over the decks worked havoc among the rigging, and the masts swayed and tottered as though about to fall. One of the seamen, named J. Auger, was assisting in furling the mizzen topsail when the crash came on the deck. The shock was felt so strongly aloft that he was shaken from his perch and fell into the sea. He made a struggle to swim after the vessel, but nothing could be done to save him and he was drowned. He was only twenty years of age and a native of France.

For nearly ten days the hurricane continued without intermission, and during that time the vessel drifted back nearly to the Cape again.

Then came a day of fair weather, but the next morning saw the storm in all its fury again. The seas once more were washing over the vessel, and one wave larger than the rest swept over the bulwarks, smashing in the door of the fore-castle and flooding the quarters of the men. As it went aft it took off the skylight of the cabin, filling the rooms of the officers with water and damaging a quantity of provisions in the storerooms. Many more sails were blown away, and the men of the crew were so knocked about by the storm and rolling of the ship that only nine were fit for duty by the time the storm subsided.

The moderate weather was only for a few days, when it seemed that the storm had gathered all its forces for a final effort to wreck the vessel. All of September 27 the hurricane was more severe than any of the previous days, and the seas rose almost like mountains. During the height of the tempest the midship wheel rudder chain parted. At the same time the relieving tackles parted again, and the rudder was almost useless. Nothing could be done to steer the vessel while the storm lasted, and in that time she got broadside to the seas. At times it seemed that the vessel would roll completely over. Then the cargo began to move to starboard, and by the time the rudder chains were temporarily repaired the vessel had a heavy list. It was impossible to get the steering gear in repair so that it could be depended upon, and the vessel was headed for the Falkland islands.

It took her nearly five months at Stanley to make repairs, and on February 7 last she sailed again. She had fair but variable weather until within five hundred miles of port, when a streak of calms was encountered, and it took her twenty-two days to make port. She sailed in through the Heads with every piece of canvas she could carry set, and made a grand circle to an anchorage off Alcatraz island.

LITTLE LATE SUPPERS.

A Pleasant Way of Ruining One's Digestion Here Presented.

Everyone, except the dyspeptics, loves a late supper. It is a natural trait. Boarding school boys and girls, with shawls hung over their transoms, consume olives and chocolate cake and truly enjoy life. When they escape the necessity of hanging shawls and outgrow the taste for pickles and cake they still like late suppers. Like all natural desires, it is one which should be gratified. The only care should be concerning the manner of its gratification. To eat a repast just before going to bed which will keep the digestive organs busy all night is a slow method of suicide.

What the undisciplined taste always desires about midnight is lobster a la Newburg, Welsh rarebit or fried oysters with coffee. These are particularly detrimental to the health and the desire for them should be vigorously restrained. The taste should be educated to prefer toasted crackers and chocolate.

Of course when one gives a late supper indigestible things are in order. Then such appetizing morsels as stuffed olives, anchovy toast, lobster Newburg, caviare on toast, venison steak, broiled grouse, cheese souffles, rum omelette and the like are desirable. A supper which would appeal to any man's taste comprises stuffed oysters with tartar sauce, brown bread toast, venison steak with currant jelly, glazed sweet potatoes, velvet biscuit, olives, crackers, cheese, fruit and coffee. Another equally good contains stuffed olives, toasted crackers, fried oysters, celery salad, broiled grouse, bread sauce, rolls, fried potatoes, Welsh rarebit, baked apples and coffee.—N. Y. World.

NAPOLEON WAS GERMAN.

A French Historian Attempts to Prove Bonaparte's Descent.

An interesting theory regarding the origin of the Bonaparte family is formulated by the French historian, Peyre, in his work "Napoleon I. et son Temps." Peyre declares that the ancestors of the "Little Corsican" were German and not Italian, and attempts to prove it as follows: "From the eleventh to the fourteenth century there lived in Genoa the influential and widely scattered German family bearing the name Cadalinger. The family was at all times a true ally of the German imperial party in Italy, and at the same time its members were the leaders of the citizens of Genoa and the guardians and protectors of municipal liberty and justice. For these reasons the family was greatly respected by both high and low. The people conferred upon them the popular and honorable title of 'buona parte'—that is, 'belonging to the good party.' This attribute or nickname adhered to the family even after it lost its wealth, influence and power.

"At this time certain members of the family entered the service of the St. George bank, which had many foreign possessions. Through it they went to Corsica. In order not to dim in any way the luster of their family name by accepting places so far beneath what their ancestors had had they called themselves by their nickname, Buonaparte. From them are descended Napoleon I. and his house."

ONE ORATOR TOO MANY.

The Appearance of a Second Put the First to Confusion.

Rev. Dr. Benjamin Watson, a venerable Episcopal clergyman of Philadelphia, tells the following anecdote of the late Stephen H. Tyng, the elder, once rector of Holy Trinity, Philadelphia, and afterward rector of St. George's in New York city: "Before Dr. Tyng came to this city," says Dr. Watson, "he was rector of a church at Georgetown, now a part of Washington city. It was in the early days of the century, when that great statesman and orator, Henry Clay, was in the heyday of his glory. One Sunday evening Dr. Tyng ascended his pulpit and proceeded to deliver a most eloquent sermon. His hearers and he realized simultaneously that his words were unusually eloquent. In the midst of an impassioned exhortation the church door opened and a belated Christian walked down the aisle and took a seat. It was Henry Clay. Dr. Tyng recognized him. Suddenly and unaccountably the preacher became filled with a sense of his own insignificance as an orator in the presence of this eloquent man. He broke down and floundered miserably through the remainder of his sermon, which he brought to a speedy close."

A PRISONER'S LADDER.

Used for Climbing Out and Back When He Visited His Sweetheart.

Warden Patten, of the Indiana prison at Jeffersonville, has now on exhibition one of the most remarkable contrivances of a prisoner that ever came into his collection, says the Vincennes Sun. It is a ladder made of thousands of small pieces of twine, threads, cords and rope such as a convict would secretly collect through years of effort. With the rope Thomas Shepherd used to climb a thirty-foot wall and get out of the penitentiary yard night after night to visit an old sweetheart. He never attempted to escape, and when his ladder was found one night he returned before his absence had been discovered, rang the bell at the front gate and surrendered himself. On his arm he carried a rubber coat, which had been used to conceal his striped shirt. He wore moccasins over his shoes.

Shepherd told a straightforward story, so far as it went. He had made the ladder, he said, in order that he might visit a woman outside the prison. He had gone to her house only four times, he said. The other night when he returned he found his ladder gone from the wall and at once he decided to give himself up. He would not tell the woman's name, but the prison officials think they have discovered her identity. She went from her home in Sullivan county, Ind., some years ago to live in Jeffersonville, near her convict lover.

Shepherd said that he wove his ladder at night, and that it took him months to finish it. It contained threads, strings and bits of cords of every size, length and color. They were woven, knotted and twisted skillfully.

Shepherd was sent to prison to serve a life sentence in 1875. A new trial was secured two years later and he was recommitted on the same sentence on April 19, 1878. He has continually petitioned for executive clemency and two years ago his sentence was commuted to twenty years. He will be released, consequently, on April 18, 1898. He was a country school-teacher. One night at an apple-paring he had a quarrel with a man named Macey Engle over a girl. Engle had Shepherd arrested and one night, before the case was tried, Engle was assassinated. Shepherd was convicted on purely circumstantial evidence and has always maintained his innocence.

THE RETIRED BURGLAR.

He Tells How He Came to Take Up Burglary as a Pursuit.

"Curious, isn't it," said the retired burglar, "how often our choice of occupation, and so of course our whole lives, may be determined by circumstances? I never had any particular inclination for the burglary business; in fact, I think my inclinations would naturally be rather against it. But when I was a very young man I suffered greatly from insomnia; I couldn't sleep nights and I couldn't keep awake days.

"Now, in these days, when things are kept going all the time, there are plenty of night occupations; if I had been born now I could have found plenty to do. But in those days things were slower; things used to stop at night, and people used to go to bed and begin again in the morning, and there was mighty little choice for a man in the way of night work. So I suppose it was natural enough for me to drift into the burglary business.

"Well, I hadn't more'n fairly got settled down into it before my insomnia left me and I had the worst time you ever heard of to keep awake nights. I didn't dare to sit down anywhere for fear I'd go to sleep. I think very likely that in reality this was a good thing for me, for I had to keep right on the alert every minute, and keep moving, and I dare say that that kept me many a time from getting into trouble; but still it always seemed a kind of pity that I couldn't have got over the insomnia just a little earlier than I did. You see, then, I should have gone into some other business, and I should have liked it better, I know."—N. Y. Sun.

The Useful Wishbone.

It was at dinner, and there had been chicken, of which the little daughter of the house had partaken with great freedom.

"I want some more chicken," said Frances.

"I think you have had as much as is good for you," replied Frances' mamma.

"I want more." And Frances pouted.

"You can't have more now; but here is a wishbone that you and mamma can pull. That will be fun. You pull one side, and I'll pull the other; and whoever gets the longer end can have her wish come true. Why, baby, you've got it! What was your wish, Frances?"

"I wish for some more chicken," said Frances, promptly.

She got it this time.—Christian Register.

GENTLEMEN: Replying to yours of the 1st, would say that I have used tobacco for 46 years, and of late have consumed a 10-cent plug a day, besides smoking considerably. I commenced to use tobacco when I was only 11 years old, and have never been able to give up the habit until I took Narcoti-Cure, although I have tried other so-called remedies without effect. After using your remedy four days all "hankering" for chewing disappeared, and in four days more smoking became unpleasant. I have no further desire for the weed and experienced no bad effects whatever. I am gaining in flesh and feel better than I have for a long time. To all who wish to be free from the tobacco habit I would say, use Narcoti-Cure. Yours truly,

HOW H. R. H. DRESSES.

The Wonderful Outfit of the Prince of Wales Described.

He Spends a Great Deal of Money with His Tailors, But Much of It Is for Uniforms, of Which He Has Many.

In a chatty article on the prince of Wales and his clothes, a writer in Cassell's Saturday Journal says: As a matter of fact the "First Gentleman in Europe" does spend a great deal of money with his tailors. It should be remembered, nevertheless, that much of this is for uniforms. The prince is popularly supposed to possess seventy military uniforms, and this is about accurate.

When we remember that a cavalry outfit may cost £150 as a low estimate, and that subalterns entering a line regiment rarely begin with a lower disbursement than £50 or £60, the amount that the prince's uniforms has cost him is easily to be gauged.

The prince, of course, possesses, for the most part, colonel's uniforms, but as a field marshal he is compelled often to renew the terribly expensive outfit suited to that rank, and it is in this fine tunic that he appears at most military ceremonies and at royal weddings, or other great occasions of state. In addition, he possesses many naval uniforms and the dress of a large number of German, Russian and Austrian regiments.

Putting aside the question of uniforms, upon which his royal highness cannot spend less than three or four hundred pounds a year, we come to his ordinary dress. It is admitted universally that very few men in town manage things with more taste or have a quicker eye for good cloth. There are youths, no doubt, whose tailors' bills are far larger than the prince's, for he is by no means extravagant, although exceedingly particular about his clothes.

Nor does he, says the writer, pay absurdly fancy prices, as many people suppose, being charged the usual rate of a west end house. This means that a frock coat may cost him twelve guineas, which most people would regard as very "fancy"; indeed, a dress suit somewhere about fifteen, trousers four guineas, and an ordinary "ditto" suit from eight to ten guineas.

When in town the frock coat is invariably worn by the prince. No doubt during the London season he consumes a large number of these articles—perhaps two a month, of which one will be a light gray.

And it is a habit of his never to wear a coat two seasons running, even if it has been used only two or three times by him. As he is in town perhaps six months in the year, his total of "frocks" may be set down roughly at twelve.

In dress suits he is supposed to be particularly extravagant, but this is not really the case. Any man about town has five or six dress suits a year. The prince may have a dozen, but the story told in a contemporary recently that he had one a week is pure nonsense.

When the prince is going to Newmarket he often wears a "ditto" suit with light covert over it. In "ditto" suits, perhaps, his total would astonish the humble man who pays his tailor £30 a year and considers that heavy.

It is certain that he never wears one of these suits more than two or three times, and his stock of them is tremendous. Of shooting suits for the autumn he has an immense variety, using a different style of dress for battue work to that adopted for ordinary work with the dogs. Here alone for a country dress he can scarcely spend less than a hundred pounds a year.

In the matter of hats, it is a well-known fact that the prince has three a fortnight, also buying a large number of bowler and square black hats for country use.

At Sandringham there is a hat-room with a man whose chief duty it is to keep the prince's "tires" in a high condition of polish. In the same palace a number of vast wardrobes contain the bulk of the uniforms and clothes which are not in regular use.

Those large scarfs which are now worn with a frock coat often cost half a guinea. There are scores of up-to-date youths who have fifty pairs of gloves per annum; three dozen shirts would be regarded as an absolute minimum. So far as the prince is concerned, he never wears a pair of gloves twice, and in this, and in the matter of boots, he is unquestionably the best dressed man in the kingdom.

He Quits His Tenth Wife.

Abraham Rimes, of Laporte, Ind., has been granted a divorce from his tenth wife. Rimes' last wife was his first bride. He married eight other aspirants for his affections before he was again wedded to his first wife, from whom he was legally separated shortly after marriage.

THEY OVERDID IT.

Hence Their Names Did Not Appear in the Uncle's Will.

"Uncle John has at last consented to dine with us," said Mrs. Featherly.

"Ah, that's nice of the old man," said Mr. Featherly. "We'll have things rather fine for him, eh?"

"Well, yes; but not too much so. You don't know Uncle John. If he sees that we're inclined to be extravagant, he'll go away with a very poor opinion of us. He'll think to himself that we ought to be saving our money."

"Yes, that's so. We must jolly the old man along. I'd give ten dollars to have a squint at his will."

"Edward, how you talk about Uncle John! Now, what shall we have?"

"Oh, pork and beans and horse radish, I suppose. If that doesn't make him think we're saving, nothing will. And, then, you see, after he's gone home we can go to the club and have a duck and a bottle of sauterne, eh?"

"No, Edward, that will never do. We can have a fair dinner, and it need not be costly."

"Let's see, the old gentleman smokes, doesn't he? I'll get a dozen real perfectos."

"No, no, you mustn't! He'd think you were indulging in extravagant habits. Let him offer you a cigar, if he chooses."

"But, great Scott, what kind of hospitality do you call that? Having your guest furnish his own cigars, and, what is more, yours too!"

"Well, he'll think it's all right. He'll admire you more if you don't have even cigarettes."

"I might buy a box of Pittsburg stogies. They're twenty-five cents a hundred, or some such matter. He'll get a notion of my saving habits from them that he will remember for a long time."

"No, no, it won't do at all."

So the dinner was given—a very simple affair of fried liver and plain salad, and prunes. No wine, no tobacco. And the pressed glass, the second best china, and the plated ware were put on, and a darned table cloth. Mr. Featherly wore a coat which never fitted him and which he never wore except in the cellar or garret.

Uncle John chatted gayly with them, and was not in the least patronizing, and after dinner he asked leave to smoke, and pressed a cigar on his nephew.

After he had gone Mr. Featherly opened a bottle of beer that was hid in the refrigerator, got out the remains of an Edam cheese, and a bag of biscuit, and made Mrs. Featherly sit down with him while he ate and drank and made merry, thinking of the legacy they would get by Uncle John's will.

In the next afternoon's paper they read that Mr. John Oldham had given $10,000 to the hospital for dyspepsies, and now they keep asking themselves whether they did not overdo the pretense at simplicity.—Buffalo Courier.

Women as Dramatists.

In the last century, all literary young ladies tried their prentice hands at tragedy. One of these ambitious aspirants brought her production to Dr. Johnson, and begged him to look over it.

He gruffly told her that she could find out the mistakes as well as he could.

"But, sir," she said, "I have no time. I have so many irons in the fire."

"Then, madam," growled the doctor, "the best thing I can advise you to do is to put your tragedy in along with your irons."

Before Johnson's day, however, one woman had made a very high reputation as a dramatist, though her line was comedy, not tragedy. Susanna Centlivre wrote no fewer than eighteen plays, three of which: "The Wonder," "The Busybody" and "A Bold Stroke for a Wife," kept the stage for a hundred years, and are even now remembered as remarkable performances for women of that day. Congreve gave up writing plays in a fit of pique, because his "Way of the World" was totally neglected, while Mrs. Centlivre's "Wonder" attracted crowded houses.—All The Year Round.

The Price of Interviews.

It appears that Mr. W. S. Gilbert is not the first or the only distinguished Englishman to ask compensation for an interview. The New York Sun's correspondent in London once upon a time wrote to Mr. Gladstone asking him for an interview on the Irish question, and in the course of a conversation which followed with Mr. Gladstone's secretary it was learned that a fee of $500 would be expected in payment for the interview, it being understood that Mr. Gladstone should write it himself, and thus make it authoritative. Lord Roberts fixed the price of $100 for an interview upon the threatened war between England and Russia on another occasion.—Boston Herald.

A GRITTY CAT.

Puss Kills an Eagle and Takes It Home.

Charles Wiswell, of Carbonate, Lawrence county, Minn., has a cat that is a king of its kind. Besides being a good mouser, this remarkable feline is death to mountain rats, night hawks and other small game, not long ago bringing home as the result of its prowess a large jack rabbit. But the most remarkable incident in the cat's history happened a few days ago.

It was an encounter with a full-grown bird of freedom, and puss was the victor. The cat was sitting on a pile of quartz patiently awaiting the reappearance of a chipmunk, which but a moment before it had chased into a hole, when suddenly the sky above the cat became darkened, and an ominous swish as if from a rapidly moving body fell upon puss's ear. The cat sprang aside with a motion so rapid that the eye could scarcely follow it, and in the place it had occupied but a moment before stood a full-grown bald eagle, its plumage ruffled and thirsting for blood. Puss had sand and accepted the gauge of battle, and in less time than it takes to tell it, the famous "monkey and parrot" time was being re-enacted. It was a desperate struggle, and, although puss was pretty badly scratched by the eagle's talons, it, when taking the initiative in the fight, secured a decided advantage, having landed on the eagle's back. For a few moments the air was filled with fur and feathers, and the ground was all torn up, but puss held on, and in a short time succeeded in biting through the neck of its antagonist. The struggles of the eagle grew weaker and weaker, and soon ceased altogether, and puss, exhausted by the violent exertions and sore from wounds inflicted by the eagle's talons, rested for a moment, then, as calm as though sitting on a rug before the kitchen hearth, went carefully over the ruffled fur, made its toilet, and, seizing the body of the vanquished antagonist, drew it with much difficulty to the home of its master. Laying it at the master's feet, the cat purred its satisfaction, and in this way boasted of the victory.

The combat was witnessed by a number of people, everyone of whom expressed a desire to buy the cat, but Mr. Wiswell says he would not sell it for the best mine in the Black Hills. The eagle measured six feet four inches from the tip of one wing to that of the other.—St. Paul Pioneer Press.

HE WAS "THE GENERAL."

But the Men Did Not Know the Name of Their Commander.

The men of the light division in the Crimea always spoke of Sir George Brown as "the general," as was then, and is still, though in a lesser degree, the habit of soldiers, possibly from not knowing the name of the immediate leader. This ignorance cost Sir George one pound sterling during the worst of the winter. He had seized the opportunity of meeting Lord Hagian to urge the desirability of showing himself more frequently in the camps.

"What good will it do?" "Oh! 'twill cheer the men up. Why, sir, numbers of my men don't know your name."

"But they don't know your name, George!"

"Every man in the light division knows my name."

"I'll bet you one pound sterling the first man we ask does not."

"Done," said Sir George, and they rode to the right division camp.

"Come here, my man. Who am I?"

"You're the general, sir."

"But my name?"

"You're the general, sir," and nothing more could be elicited from him. Sir George Brown paid up on the spot.

No one who saw him ride straight toward the foe, without an indication that he was in any danger, is likely to forget the animating effect of his bearing on the soldiers.—Fortnightly Review.

Pat's Faith.

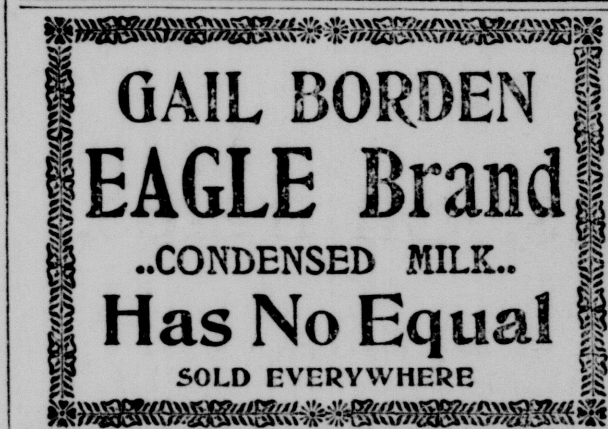

"One of the most remarkable cases of faith I have ever seen," said a well-known physician recently, "occurred when I was a student in Philadelphia. I had a patient, an Irishman, who had a broken leg. When the plaster bandage was removed, and a lighter one put in its place, I noticed that one of the pins went in with great difficulty, and I could not understand it. A week afterward, in removing this pin, I found that it had stuck hard and fast, and I was forced to remove it with forceps. What was my astonishment on making an examination to find that the pin had been run through the skin twice instead of through the cloth."

"Way, Pat," said I, "didn't you know that pin was sticking in you?"

"To be shure I did," replied Pat, "but I thought you knowed your business, and so I hilt me tongue."—Atlanta Journal.

ROW AT A WEDDING.

Rival Lover Attempts to Shoot the Prospective Groom.

Dr. Hunter, of Chicago, a traveling doctor with an advertising company, drove sixteen miles through the mud to Fort Scott yesterday to prevent the marriage of A. J. Bunce, of Topeka, and Miss Ida Guernhart, of Omaha, and created a sensation which resulted in his arrest.

The young man and woman were leading members of the company and they went to Fort Scott to get married. The doctor, who, it appears, loved the pretty young lady, arrived at the Huntington hotel with his silk hat, broadcloth clothes and a white shirt bespattered with mud, just as the ceremony was to be performed, and entering the room where the officiating judge was waiting for a witness, he drew a pistol and attempted to shoot Bunce, and the prospective groom was finally compelled to flee for his life.

The scream of the female patrons of the hotel attracted 500 persons, who, seeing Bunce running hatless, supposed him to be the offender and pursued him. He was captured three blocks away in hiding in the grain room of a grocery store. After proper explanations he returned to the hotel, escorted by the city marshal, and the ceremony was performed. The doctor was later found and arrested.

A FIENDISH CRIME.

No Less Than Fifteen Brutes Assault a Young Girl.

Lillie Favors, the 16-year-old daughter of Wilson Favors, residing one mile east of Gaston, Ind., was last Tuesday evening inticed from her home by Richard Smith, a neighbor's son, under the pretense of going to a party in the neighborhood.

When at a lonely point on the road Smith was joined by several friends, and together they bound and gagged Miss Favors and carried her into a deep wood. She was there held as a prisoner until Saturday evening, and during the four days and nights she was without shelter of any kind and had to eat only what the men, who ravished her in the meantime, brought her in their pockets.

Saturday she made her escape and got to Gaston, where she was found by her parents and taken home. Her condition was very serious and it was some time before she could tell the story of the indignities to which she had been forced to submit.

Kept a prisoner all the time, never being allowed out of the sight of one of the men, she said she had been ravished time and again by fifteen different men.

Warrants were issued and placed in the hands of constables, and yesterday Frank Miller, one of the men against whom Miss Favors gave information, was apprehended and taken into custody.

To protect his life from the infuriated men who had heard the girl's pitiful story he was taken out of the township to await the time of his trial, which will be held Thursday.

None of the others have yet been arrested, although the constables are searching for them. The girl's condition is still very serious.
